

The decision by Sinclair Broadcasting to compel local stations to air an anti-Kerry program under the guise of "news" just prior to our most important presidential election is both dangerous and immoral. It tramples on the rights of all Americans.

Media giants like Sinclair have a responsibility to present fair and unbiased news over the free airwaves they use. If they feel the need to smear a candidate (as they obviously do,) they should label that message truthfully as political advertising.

The FCC needs to take a closer look at what these corporate giants are doing to America!
